Goods in Transitu from Canada. One of the great advantages of Confederation will be the admission of a large quantity of Canadian manufactured goods and productions duty free. The saving to consumers of such merchandize within the colory has been estimated on the basis of our tariff to amount to from fift to sixty thousand dollars per year. In other words, free trade with Canada will be worth that sum to the colony in the saving of duties. It is not likely to reach that amount during the first or second year after Confederation; but within three years there must be a material change in our trade connections. Our merchants will have to substitute Canada for Great Britain and the United States to a far greater extent than is now generally imagined, or else they will be unable to compete in our market with importers of Canadian merchandize. To enable our merchants to take full advantage of free trade with Canada, three or four things are essential. Vessels will have to be laid on in the Provinces for this port, direct. Next, goods may pass in transitu to New York, and from thence Lastly, the Pacific Railway route will afford the most speedy means of importing certain classes of Canadian merchandise. At present, there is not much difficulty experienced in shipping goods from Canada to New York city in bond

RODMEN & CHAINMEN

FOR THE

BRITISH COLUMBIA DIVISION. by rail, the expense of bonding and ware-housing being the chief drawback on trada by that route. The United States

Four Good Plain Cooks, Contoms laws and regulations have been modified, however, to suit the trade of Eastern Provinces in the matter of goods in transitu. Even goods from Eugland, For Particulars apply to en route to the Pacific, are provided for.
But there is a difficulty somewhere in George Watt, Walt forwarding goods from Western Canada via Port Huron and Detroit, to this country. It was at one time partially owing to me customs officers at Detroit having no authority from the United States Treasury Department to pass the goods. That, however, has been relaxed in every instance. But a difficulty has arisen in getting the goods bonded. As soon as the trade assumes more importance than the teade assumes more importance than it does now, there will doubtless be enough Custom House brokers there, familiar with our importers, to bond goods in transitu, without feeling that they have taken much risk. But a better plan has obtained between the Eastern frontier and Atlantic ports of the United States, that is, the railroad companies become responsible to the Customs' Department for the safe delivery of the goods in transitu at their place of destination. A similar arrangement with the ratifical companies between Detroit and San Francisco will do much to facilitate ween this and Untario, and reduce the expenses attendant ou transportation. It is a matter for our merchants to deal with in the outstart. But in the Treaty of Washington, express provision is made for goods in transitu. By the 26th and 33rd Articles of the Treaty, the period is limited to ten years, and to be terminated at that or any subsequent time, on giving two years notice. Additional legislation will, however, have to be made by the Dominion Parliament and United States Congress before the provisious of the Treaty can be made legally operative. The matter, however, is one that ought to be brought early under the notice of the Ottawa Cabinet, with a view to the encouragement of free trade between the Pacific and Eastern Provinces. Canadian goods have already arrived here and have been bonded, waiting to enter duty free as soon as Confederation shall have taken place. More goods are on the way. The import trade will be sure to grow rapidly; and it is not at all anlikely that we too will begin to export to Canada. Even now, we believe that wool will command a better profit there than in California. At any rate, the question deserves the early attention of the mercantile portion of the commun-its, as well as the Customs authorities of the Dominion.

Canadian Paragraphs on the Pacific Bailway Survey.

Two Pacific Railway exploring parties left Ottawa on Sunday, June 11th, proceeding up the civer, and a third on Monday. Mr. Langevin assured his Quebec audience the other day that the railway would be built without taking a cent out of the people's pockets; but in the meantime from whose pockets are these pealiminary aveness met? these preliminary expenses met?
